

Personal Injury Management Conference 2008

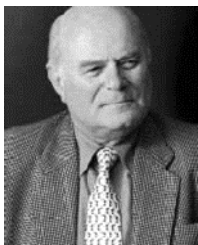

20th and 21st October, 2008
Sydney Convention Centre, Darling Harbour
Sydney, Australia

Personal Injury Management Conference 2008

A personal invitation

As Chairman of the Personal Injury Education Foundation it is my pleasure to invite you to the Personal Injury Management Conference 2008 at the prestigious Sydney Convention Centre in Darling Harbour, Sydney.

The conference will span two days and will include international experts from accident compensation schemes from across Australia, New Zealand and North America presenting on a range of interesting and challenging topics. This is a wonderful opportunity to hear the latest expert opinions and advice from industry leaders as well as to network in new circles. The range of presentations, panel sessions and stream topics means you can tailor the conference to your individual interests or specialties to gain the most possible.

This event is also about celebrating the achievements being made in the personal injury industry. On the evening of the 20th October, as part of the conference, the Foundation will be holding its Excellence in Personal Injury Management Awards. The awards will celebrate and showcase these achievements and acknowledge their importance in our broader communities. After the formal ceremony guests will gather in the Bayside Terrace room, overlooking the Sydney cityscape for refreshments and to meet with award winners and conference delegates to celebrate the occasion.

I invite you to join me and my fellow board members to participate in, observe and enjoy the Personal Injury Management Conference and the Excellence in Personal Injury Management Awards 2008.

Professor Robert Officer
Chairman, Personal Injury Education Foundation

About the Foundation

The Personal Injury Education Foundation was established as a not for profit organisation by a consortium of Australian and New Zealand accident compensation regulators, insurers and claims management organisations who shared the vision of creating leading tertiary programs focused on the needs of those working in the industry. These programs have been designed to enrich and enhance the range and depth of personal injury management skills, leading to better outcomes for all accident compensation schemes and the communities they are designed to serve.

To further elevate the reputation of the industry the Foundation has developed this conference and the Excellence in Personal Injury Management Awards to celebrate and showcase those who often do extraordinary work, to allow those in the industry a forum to share ideas and to help raise the industry profile.

In addition to being committed to the existing programs and their continual improvement and development, the Foundation is also moving forward with a new partnership with the Canadian National Institute of Disability Management and Research (NIDMAR). The Foundation was recently granted the exclusive Australian license to NIDMAR's international certification programs in disability management opening up a new level of professionalism in disability management in Australia.

Personal Injury Management Conference 2008

Conference themes

Return to work

Return to work is a key strategy for all workers' compensation jurisdictions and is increasingly becoming a key focus of motor accident schemes.

Service delivery

Improving the delivery of service provided to injured workers and motorists is a key initiative of many workers' compensation and motor accident schemes across Australia and New Zealand. Hear about the progress being made and the challenges that still remain from a range of experts in this field.

Medical management

Medical and allied health providers are key stakeholders in the success or otherwise of all accident compensation schemes. Listen to experts discuss recent initiatives and progress being made in this important area.

Scheme comparisons

In recent years there has been many significant turnarounds in the performance of accident compensation schemes, plus there has been a concerted push to try and harmonise legislation and policy across jurisdictions. For the first time in Australasia a panel of accident compensation industry leaders will discuss and debate the different approaches taken to improving performance across the industry.

Industry capability

Identifying the most appropriate and effective way of attracting, retaining and rewarding staff is a priority for the entire accident compensation industry. Over the last few years the industry has made great progress in increasing the professionalism and attractiveness of the industry. However, many challenges still remain. Hear about the progress being made in the development of the latest initiatives aimed at improving industry capability across Australia, New Zealand and internationally.

Hear from international & local industry leaders

Terry Bogyo

With over 26 years in the industry, Terry speaks internationally on issues facing workers' compensation systems and on future risks and challenges that will face workplaces and society. Terry's current responsibilities include environmental scanning, strategic planning and inter-jurisdictional comparisons. He is currently a Director of WorkSafeBC.

Liz Scott

Liz Scott is the Principal of Organizational Solutions and is an accomplished Disability Management professional recognised for award winning cost reduction results and "best practice" program designs. Liz is renowned for the ability to solve a complex variety of internal and external workers' compensation, disability, and insurance concerns.

Wolfgang Zimmerman

Wolfgang Zimmerman is the Executive Director of the National Institute of Disability Management and Research (NIDMAR). Following a horrific logging accident at twenty years of age, Wolfgang helped forge NIDMAR; a not for profit organisation designed to reduce the human, social and economic impact of disability to workers, employers and society through training and education and the development of international professional standards.

Three concurrent sessions

The experience of the injured

Being injured in a workplace or transport accident can be a life changing event. In this session we will hear from a worker who managed to turn his life around after a debilitating injury.

*David Crawford,
Spinal Cord Injuries Australia*

The New Zealand customer service experience

The Accident Compensation Corporation (ACC) provides 24/7 no-fault insurance cover for all injuries that occur in New Zealand. Everyday they process 7,000 claims and answer over 25,000 telephone calls. Over the last few years the ACC has been working to develop an organisation that is focussed on providing a more integrated service for their clients. In this session hear about the improvements that have been made and the challenges that remain.

*Denise Cosgrove,
General Manager, People and Business Services, Accident Compensation Corporation*

The experience of the regulator

In Victoria, the Transport Accident Commission and WorkSafe Victoria recently formed the Health Services Group. The aim of the Health Services Group is to simplify processes and implement initiatives that support healthcare providers to achieve better rehabilitation and return to work outcomes for injured Victorians. The focus will be on preventative health and research and to build stronger relationships with healthcare providers.

Three concurrent sessions

The WorkSafe vocational rehabilitation experience

Creating a service focussed industry

Vocational programs in personal injury

In 2003, the responsibility for providing Vocational Rehabilitation Services to injured workers in British Columbia was transferred to WorkSafeBC. Since that time claims costs, waiting times to access rehabilitation and claim durations have reduced significantly.

Terry Bogyo, WorkSafeBC

In 2002 WorkSafe Victoria implemented a new claims management model that was designed to improve the performance of the scheme, reduce costs to employers and to improve service to injured workers. In this session Len Boehm will discuss how WorkSafe Victoria's agent incentive systems have been designed to help build a more effective service culture in the Victorian workers' compensation scheme.

Len Boehm, WorkSafe Victoria

In 2004, the first specialised vocational qualifications in workers' compensation were developed. There are now 3 different qualifications available in workers' compensation and personal injury management.

This session will focus on the achievements to date, the programs that are available and the challenges that remain.
